

2022 SSWR Roots & Wings Session I

Mentorship For Anti-Racist and Inclusive Research

Thursday, April 28, 2022 (3:30pm – 5:00pm Eastern)

A primary focus of doctoral education is to prepare the next generation of scholars, researchers, and educators who function as stewards of the discipline (GADE Strategic Plan, 2016). Systemic racism and a political climate that fuel xenophobia and hate against Black, Indigenous, and People of Color (BIPOC) challenge doctoral education to revisit how we are preparing the next generation of social work scholars to decolonize and de-center whiteness in social work research. As part of the SSWR Roots and Wings session held at the SSWR conference every year, this webinar aims to generate a dialogue about fostering anti-racist and inclusive mentoring practices and how to prepare our doctoral students to conduct anti-racist and inclusive research, across various stages of their career trajectory. Join us for this timely conversation!
